Dear Friends:

It is a pleasure to provide you with the University of Georgia Foundation’s 2006 Annual Report. It was an interesting and exciting year that showed we are on a clear course for long-term prosperity that will serve to strengthen our primary objective of supporting the academic mission of the University of Georgia.

The Foundation ended fiscal year 2006 with a total of $567 million in assets, an increase of more than $48.6 million over the prior year, thanks to contributions by friends of the University of Georgia and the good work of our investment committee.

For those of you that have made gifts to the foundation, we are sincerely grateful for the support you have offered our beloved institution. We will continue working hard to assure that the trust you have placed in us with your gifts is justified.

As you read through this report, you’ll find details about how your funds were managed and how they were appropriated for academic enhancements in 2006. I believe you will be pleased with the results.

We are truly honored by the continued support offered to the foundation throughout the year and look forward to an even more successful and rewarding 2007!

Sincerely,

Read Morton, Chairman

Overview

Nominating Committee Update

The nominating committee sought to expand the geographic diversity of the board in fiscal year 2006 to assure that all regions of the State of Georgia are adequately represented. During the term, we presented some outstanding individuals for nomination from north, central and south Georgia, all of whom won unanimous approval from the board. These individuals bring a broad range of high-level expertise that adds greatly to the depth and breadth of the organization.

New trustees are:

- Mike Godwin (Valdosta)
- Ken Jackson (Chattanooga/Dalton)
- Jeff Knox (Augusta)
- Wick Searcy (Savannah)

It is our honor to have these outstanding people on our board of trustees and we look forward to working with them in 2007!

Bill Young, Jr. – Chair
Development and Public Affairs Committee Update

It was an interesting and eventful year for the Development and Public Affairs Committee and was highlighted by new initiatives that have helped convey news of the foundation’s good work. Committee members were instrumental in helping establish regular communications vehicles designed to inform and motivate. These included:

• A new Web site (www.ugafoundation.org) was designed and developed to reflect a much more contemporary look and to provide a vehicle for immediate news updates as needed. It’s a very attractive and functional site, and if you haven’t visited it yet, I encourage you to do so.

• A bi-monthly chairman’s newsletter was designed to give the foundation a vehicle to communicate current news to all donors, trustees, and emeritus trustees.

• An ongoing media relations campaign was initiated to help spread the good news of the foundation’s success.

• The Development and Public Affairs Committee was also responsible for spearheading the effort that led to creation of this Annual Report, a publication which will continue each year moving forward.

This is but a small sampling of the work of an active committee and I offer my sincere thanks to the board members who contributed so much to our efforts!

Committee Activity
Overview

Finance Committee Update

The Finance Committee’s primary responsibilities are to provide oversight of approximately $567 million in assets and management of the foundation’s annual revenue, which amounted to more than $75.5 million in fiscal year 2006. In addition, the committee reviews and ensures accuracy of the financial reporting as well as develops and manages the unrestricted budget of approximately $6.8 million. During the past year, the Finance Committee worked to keep administrative costs at a minimum while also increasing the amount of money available for foundation-sponsored programs.

After studying available options, we concluded that the most prudent course of action was to extend the Administrative Services Agreement in which the foundation pays the university $250,000 per year for administrative and accounting support.

This agreement has proven to be quite effective from both operational and economic standpoints. Cindy Coyle – serving as the foundation’s chief financial officer – and her staff have provided excellent service in managing operations.

In light of this success, we signed an extension of the current arrangement at the same annual cost plus a small adjustment for inflation. The foundation was able to provide an additional $2 million from unrestricted funding to the already $2.4 million provided in fiscal year 2006 to the university for academic programs and events.

Wyck Knox – Chair
Investment Committee Update

The foundation’s assets grew by 12.7% during the 2006 fiscal year, outpacing the performance of the S&P 500 (8.7%) during the same period.

As of the end of the fiscal year on June 30, the foundation’s investment assets were allocated across the following strategies: 70.6% equities (divided between 51.2% domestic equities and 19.4% international equities); 12.8% alternative investments, including private equities and hedge funds; 6.5% fixed-income assets; 6.1% real estate; and 4% cash and natural resources.

The growth resulted in an increase in investment assets of approximately $44 million.

The foundation’s investment success to date can be attributed to an active, involved and totally committed Investment Committee that is in sync with the guidance of our consultants, Prime, Buchholz and Associates, Inc. Our investment results of the last several years reflect the good work of these two groups.

Joe Frierson, Jr. – Chair
The Audit and Governance Committee spent the past year laying the financial and procedural foundation to help assure a successful future for the University of Georgia Foundation.

The committee drafted a code of conduct for the foundation, approved external auditors for the 2006 fiscal year and monitored trustees for their compliance with disclosure of interests as part of the foundation’s conflict of interest policy. A charter for the Audit and Governance Committee also was adopted during the past year that outlines the committee’s responsibilities.

The committee reviewed and approved the audited financial statements for the 2005 fiscal year for both the UGA Foundation and the UGA Real Estate Foundation. It also reviewed and approved the results of an internal audit of procedures performed on both foundations. An overview of the Real Estate Foundation included the review and audit of four limited liability companies that have issued bonds.

Harriet H. Warren – Chair
The Foundation Fellows program continued its mission this year as one of the most prestigious scholarship programs in the country. Almost two dozen of the nation’s best and brightest students accepted Foundation Fellowships and enrolled in the University of Georgia this fall.

In addition to academic scholarships and foreign travel, Foundation Fellows have multiple options of seminar opportunities in which they may choose to participate each semester. During the past year, dinner seminars were held on a variety of topics ranging from media ethics and cancer research to ecocriticism and neurodegenerative disease. One such event was held at the home of Trustee Joe Frierson, Jr. of Athens; a session in which he shared his expertise as a senior vice president at Merrill Lynch in Athens and as chair of the Investment Committee.

The program received national recognition recently with favorable mentions in The Wall Street Journal and Time magazine. We continue to be proud of our students, alumni, trustees and all of the UGA faculty and staff who support the program in so many ways.

Jane Darden Lanier – Chair
Jane Seddon Willson

Even though she graduated from Wellesley College, Foundation Trustee Jane S. Willson has bestowed many very generous gifts on the University of Georgia and has spent years in service to her home state’s flagship institution. 2006 was no exception.

Building on her love of international travel, Jane made a gift that will provide funding for students to travel and study around the globe (with an emphasis on Africa) as part of the Willson International Honors Scholars Program. Her gift was one of the largest private contributions ever made to the Honors Program, which provides special study opportunities for high-achieving UGA students.

In honor of her late husband, Jane endowed the W. Harry Willson Distinguished Chair in Humanities in the Terry College of Business. Like his wife, Harry did not attend the University of Georgia, but shared her passion for giving generously to programs that enhance academics at the university.

“Georgia has been very good to us and we decided many years ago that one of the best ways we could give back to our state was to support higher education at the flagship university,” Jane stated. “By endowing a chair in the Terry College, I could think of no more appropriate way to honor Harry’s memory.”

2006 was also the year in which Jane made a major gift to the university for construction of an addition to the Georgia Museum of Art.

As impressive as this philanthropy is, for Jane Willson, the gifts noted above represent but one year’s worth of generosity. Collectively the gifts offered by Jane and Harry Willson over the decades are evident throughout the campus and across many different schools and colleges.

In a 2005 tribute to their long-time support of humanities and the arts, the university named the Jane and Harry Willson Center for Humanities and Arts in their honor. The center funds faculty research grants, lectures, publications, visiting artists, exhibitions and performances, and special professorships as a way to promote scholarship and creative activity.

“Jane Willson is a visionary philanthropist who believes that a deep understanding of civilization’s past and present will enable students to contribute productively to a more peaceful global society. She made her extraordinary gift to the Willson Center to strengthen the university’s commitment to the humanities and the arts as central to the great education she wants the university to offer our society.”

– Dr. Betty Jean Craige, director, the Jane and Harry Willson Center for Humanities and Arts
A Legacy of Service

Jane Willson is also an individual who gives so much more to the university beyond her financial support. She gives just as generously of her time, serving on the boards of several vital groups including:

- The University of Georgia Foundation Board of Trustees
  - Foundation Fellows Committee
- The Honors Program Advisory Board
- The Board of the Franklin College of Arts & Sciences
- The Board of Advisors of the University of Georgia Research Foundation

In May 2006, the University of Georgia awarded Jane a Doctor of Laws degree, considered one of the highest honors bestowed by the university. She is one of only 76 individuals in the institution’s history to be so honored.

Jane is president and owner of Sunnyland Farms in Albany, which she founded with her late husband in 1948. The company is renowned for providing the highest quality pecans, candy and nuts.

Foundation Fellows Program

“The Foundation Fellowship has opened so many doors for me. From climbing glaciers in New Zealand, to studying the classics in Athens, Greece, to networking with University of Georgia alumni in New York and Washington D.C., every trip I have been lucky enough to go on has opened my eyes to a million new possibilities. Aside from travel study, getting to know other fellows and learning from faculty members at dinner seminars has created an amazing sense of community within a large university setting. I love being a part of the fellowship and would recommend applying for it to any student who wants to widen their horizons and grow as a person, socially and academically.”

“Jack Turner, a 1953 graduate, remains an active and engaged alumni leader for UGA Athletics and the University of Georgia as a whole… Mr. Turner is one of the UGA Athletic Association’s most loyal and generous donors and was a major contributor toward the development of the soccer/softball complex.”

– Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia

Jack Turner

For Foundation Trustee Jack Turner, giving back to the University of Georgia is a family affair. In April 2006, in honor of the Turners’ service to the university, a gallery in the Georgia Museum of Art was named in memory of Jack’s late wife Nancy. Along with the gifts he has previously made, either individually or through his family foundation, Jack’s support has proven valuable in furthering academics and athletics at the university.

He assisted then Athletic Director Vince Dooley in helping make the women’s sports complex on campus a reality and has continued to support efforts that promote women’s sports at UGA. To honor Jack’s efforts and those of his family, the UGA Athletic Association Soccer facilities were officially named the “Turner Family Soccer Complex” in a dedication ceremony September 1, prior to the game between Georgia and Brigham Young University.

The complex, originally opened in 1998, includes a soccer stadium with a 1,500-seat grandstand and room for up to 1,750 spectators, a press box with seating for 20 and a full practice field. Recent additions include locker rooms for both home and visiting soccer teams; a players’ lounge; coaches’ offices; and concession stands and a promotions booth under the grandstand.

Jack was named to the University of Georgia Foundation Board of Trustees in 1999, where he has served as an active member of the Investment Committee. He graduated from the University of Georgia in 1953 with a Bachelor’s of Business Administration in Finance and was a member of Chi Psi fraternity, the Air Force ROTC and Gridiron. As an athlete he was a letterman in both baseball and basketball.

Following graduation, he served as a pilot in the U.S. Air Force and after serving his country embarked on a professional career in the financial services industry. Jack was president and retired as chairman of the board of American Funds Distributors, a subsidiary of the American Funds Group, based in Los Angeles in 1995.
JACK TURNER – A LIFETIME OF DEDICATION

What has followed could not be characterized as a “quiet retirement.” Jack has dedicated much of his retirement years to the University of Georgia. His service includes:

• Director of the Georgia Student Educational Fund (the forerunner to today’s Georgia Educational Enhancement Fund)
• Executive Committee member and director of the National Alumni Association
• Member of the board of the UGA Athletic Association
• Chairman of the UGA Athletic Association Finance Committee
• Chairman of the UGA Athletic Association Facilities Committee
• Chairman of the Georgia Athletic Association Student Athletic Scholarship Endowment Fund (through which Jack has endowed several scholarships)
• Founding member and partner in the President’s Club
• Member of the Heritage Society

In addition, Jack founded the Turner Family Foundation, a private organization that supports local charities. In 1999, he was honored by the National Football Hall of Fame for his outstanding support of amateur football and in 2002 was part of the inaugural class of inductees to the UGA Athletic Association’s “Circle of Distinction,” honoring his service to the organization. The Terry College of Business honored him in 2002 as a “Distinguished Alumni” for his longtime service to the school.

Foundation Fellows Program

“The Fellowship opens so many doors, wherever you see yourself in the future. It has given me the freedom during my college years to really make an impact by engaging the world through my passion for social justice.”

The University of Georgia Foundation’s mission remains the same today as it was on the day of its inception in 1937 – to carefully maintain and grow its endowment while providing money for scholarships, faculty salary supplements and other programs that enhance the quality of education provided by the university.

By remaining good stewards of the gifts entrusted to us, the foundation benefits not only those students and professors who receive funds directly from it, but all members of the University of Georgia community who enjoy a more rigorous and competitive academic environment.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 2006, the University of Georgia Foundation’s endowment grew almost 13 percent, and the foundation was able to provide more than $25 million in support to the university.

University of Georgia Foundation – Annual Report

Foundation Use of Funds

The university strives to provide an opportunity for quality higher education to all students in Georgia... but its budget can only go so far. That’s where the University of Georgia Foundation steps in. In fiscal 2006, as in prior years, the foundation provided more than $25 million to support a broad range of activities that enhance academics at the university and foster an environment for achievement.

University of Georgia Foundation funding in 2006 included:

• More than $5.5 million in funding for scholarships and fellowships
• More than $3.3 million to support chairs and professorships
• More than $1 million in support of facilities and centers
• More than $1.2 million to further vital research at the university
• More than $1.9 million to support University of Georgia events
• More than $10.6 million to support University of Georgia programs

It is noteworthy that, even with these expenditures, the University of Georgia Foundation’s assets continued to grow significantly in 2006, standing at $567 million by the fiscal year’s end. Of the funds under management by the foundation, $453 million is endowed for academic and faculty support. That growth was the result of the thoughtful financial management of the foundation’s existing funds, as well as generous gifts from donors.

• Unrestricted gifts – “Unrestricted gifts” received by the foundation are used to fund programs including Charter Scholarships, Vice Presidential Scholarships and National Merit Scholarships, which recognize outstanding academic performance. Unrestricted gifts also are used to recruit outstanding faculty and to sponsor activities or events that showcase the University of Georgia.
• Restricted gifts – Other funds managed by the foundation, given in the form of “restricted gifts,” are earmarked for a specific college, school, department or program. These donations are deposited across 1,925 funds at the foundation. Based on requests from those in charge of each fund, the foundation issues checks to fund scholarships, fund faculty salaries, purchase equipment and pay for other program expenses.
In addition to the funding previously noted, in fiscal 2006 the foundation concluded the year with a budget surplus of $2.8 million which allowed it to provide $2 million for the endowment of new scholarships and support of chairs and professorships with the remaining $800,000 allotted to increasing its unrestricted endowment.

How Funds Were Spent in 2006

Thoughtful financial planning, plus millions of dollars in generous gifts from donors, allowed the University of Georgia Foundation to expand its spending to a long list of new initiatives during the past year.

These included $500,000 to endow new scholarships for undergraduate study abroad programs, $250,000 for professional school scholarships in law and $250,000 for need-based and Georgia Incentive Scholarships targeted at outstanding students who otherwise might not have the opportunity to attend the University of Georgia.

The budget surplus also allowed the foundation to endow $500,000 for a distinguished professorship in biology, $250,000 in seed grants for a faculty development program to improve the teaching skills of young faculty members and $250,000 for Faculty Development Grants for professional study leaves. The remaining $800,000 of the budget surplus was added to the foundation’s endowment of unrestricted funds, providing money for future needs as they arise.

Also during the past year, the foundation provided $250,000 in one-time funding for a new Academic Scholarship Initiative aimed at freshmen who meet or exceed certain academic guidelines. The first of up to 70 scholarships were made available to students entering the University of Georgia in fall 2006 and are renewable for up to four years. The initiative is designed to attract more diverse and academically deserving undergraduate students to the university, with a special emphasis on students from seven Georgia public high schools that might otherwise not have an opportunity to attend the University of Georgia.

Another $250,000 was allocated to fund the first professorship in the university’s fifteenth and latest college, the College of Public Health.

With continued fiscal prudence, it is the board’s intention to extend sponsorship of important initiatives that significantly benefit the quality of education provided by the university, while also looking for new ways to serve students and faculty members.

In this regard, the foundation has identified $250,000 in the fiscal year 2007 budget to build an endowment for the Georgia Incentive Scholarship and another $250,000 to fund a professorship in The School of Art.

Foundation Fellows Program

“I owe the most memorable and meaningful lessons in college to the communal aspect of the Foundation Fellowship - the dinner seminars, the shared experiences abroad, the advice from older students, and the friendships with professors.”

“Through countless personal interactions and intellectual experiences on campus and abroad, the Foundation Fellowship allowed me to develop multiple perspectives on important issues and imminent challenges.”

-- Yves Bouillet
Foundation Fellow, Class of 2007
Economics, H.I.S. (South Asian Studies)
